

Outcomes uni presentation

Metadata

What do you understand under play?

To have fun

Fun/ separate activity

Free expression

Fun/ interactive

Fun/ creatively

Fun times

Interactivity safety

Fun, relaxed

To do an activity that has no ultimate purpose than enjoyment

Discovery/ experimentation

Fun/ enjoyment

Fun

Fun

Imagination/ fun

Where do you think play happens in cities outside?

parks

Park/street

In the street

Parks/ laneways/ lots of places

Ovals/ playgrounds/ squares

Public spaces

Parks

Playground

Anywhere you choose

On the street

Everywhere

Most spaces

Playgrounds

Analysis

- 13 people participated
- participants were able to name several terms

Results

What do you understand under play?

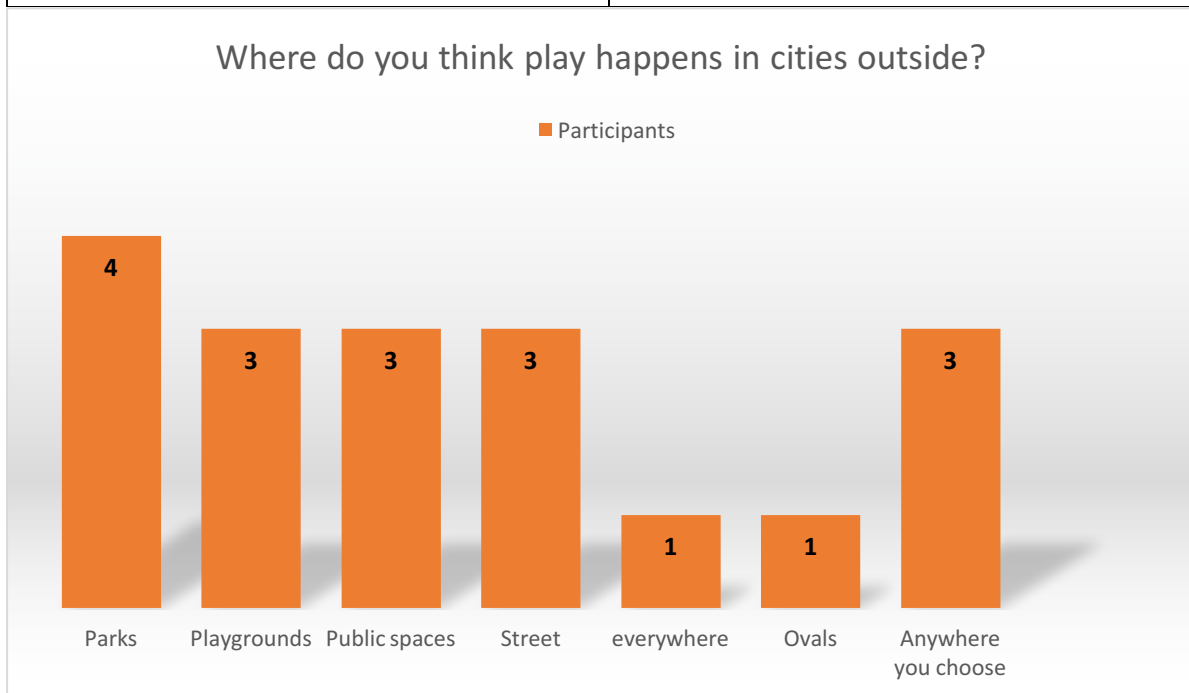

Description	Amount
fun	10
Free expression	1
To do an activity that has no ultimate purpose than enjoyment	1
Discovery/ experimentation	1
Interactivity	2
Imagination	1
relaxed	1
creatively	1
safety	1

Most participants understand under the term 'play' fun.

Where do you think play happens in cities outside?

Description	Amount
Parks	4
Playgrounds	3
Public spaces	3
Street	3
everywhere	1
Ovals	1
Anywhere you choose	3

Participants named a range of spaces where play can happen in cities. The park was named most often. Given that playgrounds are mostly situated in parkland both make up the predominate perception where play activities may occur. Public spaces and the street were perceived equally important. Despite of the fact that this is not a representative amount of people, it still provides the researcher some indication towards where public perception might lie. The category anywhere and anywhere you choose you choose is of particular interest. Together they rate equally to parks.

In conclusion one might argue that a city should foster playful activities wherever possible. Parks are named as the preferred choice, followed by public space and the street, which is part of the public realm.